DRAFT AGENDA

INTERPARLIAMENTARY COMMITTEE MEETING

The Implementation of the Data Protection Package

At the eve of its application

Tuesday 15 May 2018, 9:00 – 12.30 and 14.00 – 17.30

Brussels

Room: József Antall (JAN) 2Q2

Background Information

On 27 April 2016, the European Parliament and the Council adopted Regulation (EU) 2016/679 (General Data Protection Regulation) and Directive (EU) 2016/680 (Data Protection Directive for law enforcement purposes).

These two instruments have achieved a major breakthrough of the European data protection legal framework in order to establish a modern, robust and consistent legal framework. The new data protection package bring this legal framework into line with the Lisbon Treaty and modernise it to take account of IT developments, the explosion on new technologies and globalisation and challenges posed by terrorism and crime. The new Union data protection laws establish a modern, strong and consistent legislative framework across Union policies, which strengthen the protection of the individuals' right to personal data protection, reflecting the nature of data protection as a fundamental right in the European Union.

On one side, the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) sets a single set of rules for a uniform application of the rules for all citizens and businesses, leading to a harmonised level playing field and uniform protection of individuals and on the other side, the "law enforcement Directive" establishes a harmonised framework for the processing of personal data for law enforcement activities, both domestic level or in case of exchanges between the law enforcement authorities of the Member States replacing the different legal regimes existing before the Lisbon Treaty. Processing of personal data for purposes other than law enforcement is subject to the GDPR.

These instruments shall be applicable as of 25 May 2018, after a two years period given to the Member States to implement these instruments into national law and adapt their national legislation to the new legal framework.

The Inter-parliamentary Committee Meeting intends to take stock of views of national parliaments and stakeholders on different issues posed by the new data protection framework at the eve of its application.

National Parliaments are being deeply involved over these two years in the adoption of the national legislation implementing the data protection package. Because of their crucial role in this process, they are in a unique position to share their views and experience on the implementation of the data protection package.

The meeting is structured around four main sessions addressing them, namely, the institutional aspects, the impact on the private sector, including SMEs; technological innovation and the impact of the GDPR and last, the implementation of the "law enforcement Directive".
